

Symbiosis

Tip: Listen for the sounds of animals as you walk.

Today's Quest

Meet a Madrona Tree

Begin

Quest in Progress

Meet a Madrona Tree

30 mins

Step 3/5 of Tree Hero Badge

Madrona trees have orange-red bark, which when peeled away naturally, reveals a green underskin. In autumn, these trees bear red berries.

Hide

Meet a Madrona Tree

Show

Quest in Progress

Meet a Madrona Tree

Show

Found it!

Madrona Tree

Matched!

Your Photo

Next

Congratulations!

You've found a Madrona Tree!

Madronas are important for the cultural heritage of the Pacific Northwest. The fruits were sometimes dried, soaked, and prepared for food by indigenous communities (Moerman 1998). Communities along the Klamath River also used madrona berries as bait for steelhead fishing (Arno & Hammerly 2007).

Read more >>

Complete a 5-minute activity to make progress towards the Tree Hero badge!

Begin

Later

Challenge

Do a 5-minute sketch of any part of the Madrona Tree to add the Madrona Tree to your collection and complete the quest. You can sketch on the box here or on a paper and take a picture of it!

05:00

Start Timer

Later

04:59

Prefer to sketch on paper? Press this button to take a photo when you're done!

Add a photo (optional)

I'm done!

Congratulations!

Congratulations! You've added the Madrona Tree to your species collection. You are now one step closer to your Tree Hero Badge.

Madrona

Western Red Cedar

Bigleaf Maple

Tree Hero

Done

Today's Quest

Symbiosis Quest

Meet a Madrona Tree

Begin

Your Badges

Tree Hero

Fungus Amongus

Super Seeds

Fern Friend

Pine Pal

Go Go Nut

Felix

Kai

Koyo

My Forest

My Forest

Koyo's Forest

Western Red Cedar Tree

In addition to being a popular building material, many Northwest Coast cultures rely on this species for its medicinal properties and use them in spiritual practices. Read more >>

Madrona Tree

Madrona trees have orange-red bark, which when peeled away naturally, reveals a green underskin. In autumn, these trees bear red berries. Read more >>

Bigleaf Maple Tree

A tree that truly lives up to its name, Big leaf maples really do have huge leaves - up to a foot wide. It is also the largest maple in North America. Read more >>

Red Alder Tree

Red Alders colonize recently damaged or cleared land and fix nitrogen in the soil, providing nutrients for successive species. Read more >>

Back to ecosystem

Koyo's Forest

Back to ecosystem